PETROGRAD, JUNE 2—The general council of the Cossack forces has decided to send an address to the government giving it assurance that the Cassacks will assist with all their strength in an offensive operation because of their conviction that peace cannot be secured except by arms.

"The Cossacks do not know what desertion is," reads the address of the council "They never fraternize with the enemy but watch faithfully in the trenches."

The address expresses regret that the Cossacks are spread over the whole front instead of being grouped together so as to be able to strike a powerful blow at a given point.

THE BOYS THAT RUN THE FURROW

You can write it down as gospel,
With the flags of peace unfurled,
The boys that run the furrow
Are the boys that rule the world!

It is written on the hilltops,
In the fields where blossoms blend:
Prosperity is ending
Where the furrow has an end!

The glory of the battle,
Of clashing swords blood-red,
Is nothing to the warfare
Of the battle-hosts of bread!

The waving banners of the fields
O'er the broad land unfurled—
The boys that run the furrow
Are the boys that rule the world!

BIRD SONGS NOT A GIFT.

He Who Would Imitate Feathered Songsters Has His Job Cut Out For Him, Says Gorst.

CHARLES C GORST

"No, I did not inherit an ability to whistle bird songs," says Charles Crawford Gorst, the bird imitator, whose lecture-entertainment is a feature of our Chautauqua. "I began the work as a boy, and it took me two months before my vocal organs would record a solitary sound. I have to use painstaking care with my vocal organs and my lips in order to keep them perfectly pliable so that I can reproduce the songs even now, and I have to devote hours to practicing just as any musician does. I have had a lot of fun in preparing my bird songs. I love the out of doors. I have been able to sound a note octaves higher than Tetrazzini, and even the violin cannot reach my high note. But I can assure you it was not a gift which came to me as a boy. It has meant hard work to develop the art."

Had Modern Idea.

From many years' observation on myself and others, I am persuaded we are on a wrong scent in supposing moist or cold air the cause of that disorder we call a "cold." (Continued From Page 1) eldest of whom, Mrs. M S Ling, died several years ago at her home in Elliott, Iowa. The other children are Edward R and Matthew A McConnell, both of this city, and Mrs Ross L Palmer, of Millersburg. In 1909 he married Mrs Villa McFarland, of Danville, Knox county.

Mr McConnell lived in this county his entire life with the exception of one year spent at Wabash, Indiana. He was a Civil war veteran having served with credit for nearly three and a half years as a member of Co I, Fifty First O V I. He was a loyal member of Richard Lanning Post G. A. R. for many years. He was also prominent for fifty years in the Masonic lodge. He was a Knight Templar, that order having charge of the funeral next Monday.

Mr. McConnell was a practical farmer and stockman and always keenly interested in agricultural affairs. It was this interest in the county's rural affairs that was the foundation of a remarkable record of service on the Coshocton county Agricultural Board. He was first elected to membership on this board in 1871 and with the exception of one year served continuously in one or more of the varied branches of the Board's activities until 1911 when he retired.

His sound judgment and keen insight into business affairs made him a leader in the community. At all times he possessed the confidence of his neighbors by virtue of unusual administrative ability. He was trustee in Bethlehem township for several terms and after coming to Coshocton served the people of Tuscarawas township in like capacity. He also held the office of Justice of the Peace in Bethlehem township for fifteen consecutive years.

Perhaps his strongest hold on the good will and esteem of the citizens of Coshocton county was established while in the office of County Commissioner. He served in this capacity for six years, 1895-1901. His administration of this office is still recalled as one of the cleanest and most forcible in the history of the county. During these two terms contractors and all who came in contact with the Board came to know that the terms of a contract were not a farce, but were to be executed rigidly to the last detail. Many stories are still told of the rigid honesty which marked the relations of Thomas McConnell with every public duty.

He was a member of the Presbyterian church of this city and the pastor, the Rev. D. C. Boyd, assisted by the Rev. F. O. Boxton, will conduct the funeral which will be held at the home, 130 South Third street, at 2.30 o'clock, Monday afternoon. Burial will be made in South Lawn cemetery.

TAX LEVY

will cost about $100, according to Mr Shaw.

Thursday the county commissioners allowed road contracts in Tiverton township as follows:

To Ed Stroure, grading and gravelling along lands of George Spurgeon, $90.

To George Proper, grading hill from Mohican creek to ridge road, $250.

To Wm. Mizer, grading hill along lands of James Drummond, $15. These contracts form part of the work to be carried on with the tax levy.

The one mill tax levy was once voted down chiefly because its provisions were not understood. In 1915 the commissioners agreed to divide the moneys received equally among state and other county highways and roads in the different townships. The latter fund, it was agreed, was to be apportioned equally among the different township boards. Under this agreement the levy was voted and after several months during which West Lafayette and Warsaw councils calculated and paid their corporation levies the way was cleared for the collection of the money.

Sleeplessness.

When you are sleepless for no other apparent reason than that you just cannot get to sleep try the following remedy. Take seven to ten cloves. Place them in a cup. Pour on a cupful of boiling water. Let steep for ten minutes. Add a dash of nutmeg. Sweeten with wild honey. Drink before going to bed. It works in nine cases out of ten in all those instances in which sleeplessness does not arise from some deep-seated disorder.

of great intensity, the airmen on both sides delivering attacks against lines of communication, cantonments, ammunition depots and bodies of marching troops. In Albania on the Balkan front, where the Italians have undertaken a new offensive fresh progress was reported between Avalona and Monastir. Both the British and French have extended their lines on the western front. South of Cheyreux the French captured a German post and some prisoners. The Germans renewed their efforts against the French in Champagne, but the attacking waves were rolled back or crumpled up beneath the French artillery fire.

West of Cherissy, on the Arras front, the British renewed their pressure last night, making an advance. Northeast of Loos and near Ploegsteert successful raids were made upon the German lines. A fresh series of attacks have been commenced against the new positions of the Austro-Hungarians in the Austro Italian war theater, but over a considerable portion of the front fog and rain have hindered operations.

LULL IS BROKEN.

LONDON, JUNE 1.—The lull which had settled down over the British front in France, was broken last night when the British attacked west of Cherissy. A slight gain was scored in that sector, the war office announced today.

Successful raids and patrol encounters occurred elsewhere.

TAKE GERMAN POST.

PARIS, JUNE 1.- A German post south of Cheyreux was captured by the French last night, according to the official communique of the French war office today. A number of German prisoners were captured.

Another engagement developed in the Champagne with the German Crown Prince attempting to recapture high ground in the Casque sector. The German assault was repulsed after bitter fighting.

German troops made raids, all of which were repulsed.

Patience.

Every man, worthy of the name should know how to possess his soul—bearing with patience those things which energy cannot change, and the evil of which impatience only increases.—. This patient possession of one's soul stretches far and wide, it covers all the domain of social life—all the tract of inter-relation with others. It means patience with every kind of outside annoyance that cannot be removed by vigorous exertion.—Mrs. Lynn Linton.

the circulation of anti-conscription literature.

Ammon A Hennacy, aged 24, who was arrested at Columbus, on a charge of treason, has visited in Coshocton and was in this city about three weeks ago. At that time, it is said, he left anti-conscription literature.

House's address last night was heard by several hundred.

The Address.

Extracts from the address follow: "I do not question the right of the American government in entering the war with Germany. I do question the wisdom of the government in entering the war. President Wilson and his staff may know an infinite amount of information that you and I do not know, but it is because they did not tell us. I am not attacking the administration for its belief and I am not attacking any individual for his opinion.

"One of the first things I want to mention is why did this country enter the war against Germany? What was our purpose in entering the war? The press of the nation advises us that we took up arms in the interest of democracy and that our purpose of sending an army to Europe was to curb militarism. Men, that may be true, but I question it. It may be true, but I do not believe it. Before this country entered the war we read in the newspaper that we did not want war and that I believe, and I still believe that the people of the United States do not want war."

Reason For War.

"The reason we entered this war is of commercialism, because of the dollar. A few people in New York, Chicago and San Francisco have become tremendously rich because of this war, but the rest of us have not been benefited. It is true that there is plenty of work in this country, however, any man who is willing to go out and spend his energy and toil can find work. A few of us are receiving a few cents more on the day for our labor." He then cited the cost of maintaining a family on a fixed amount and gave the amounts, earned of different classes of workmen. He also quoted an article from a newspaper, a statement from the head of the agricultural department to the effect that unless prices for food stuff are made more reasonable that there would be a social riot in this country next fall. He also dealt with the effect of economic pressure on the social evil.

In regard to the thot that the people of Europe had looked to America to secure peace Mr. House said President Wilson could have done more for democracy in ten days by maintaining neutrality than he would be able to in a thousand years of war."

The conscription question was discreetly handled by Mr. House. He stated that conscription had been used in former wars of the United States, and said that he was uncertain that it had been employed successfully. "The greatest war for democracy this country ever fought was that of the American Revolution which was fought successfully and without conscription," said Mr House. He quoted an extract from Daniel Webster's famous address condemning conscription, but stated that he would not advise any man, nor would he want to be advised to brake the law in any way.

In closing his address he read a few paragraphs from a book on war, recently published by a New York publisher, his house.

No Need for Delay.

Johnny was invited to a party, but could not go, because he had to go with his mother to the depot to meet his uncle. Upon the uncle's arrival he said to Johnny: "If you are a good boy while I am here I will buy you a baseball," whereupon Johnny replied: "You don't need to wait. You can buy it right away. Just think how good I was—I stayed away from a party to meet you."

A Thimble for a Mouse Trap.

Put some moist cornmeal in an ordinary thimble. Then put a china bowl, upside down, the edge resting on the large end of the thimble. The mouse will go under the bowl and begin to nibble at the meal, pushing the thimble outward to secure the last bits of meal adhering to the sides. This will cause the bowl to slip down over the mouse.

Fixing the Responsibility.

While taking up a collection in church one Sunday, a little boy was seated in a section reserved for children for that particular service. Upon watching the children contribute their pennies and being under the impression that he had to contribute, he called out loudly: "I'm with my mother."

Working for Others.

If you are in doubt about this and that, worrying about yourself, and not hopeful of anyone else, and for ever restless and anxious, go out and work for others, and you will feel the healthy glow of new life. You will find rest in service.—T. Rhondda Williams.

CROWN PRINCE BUSY

(By Associated Press)

Continuing his isolation attacks against the French lines, the German Crown Prince on Friday thrust his forces forward north of Moulin Be Lauffaux along the front northeast of Soissons and against the positions on Hill No. 304 on the Verdun front.

Checked in his attempt to hold position No. 1 on Mt. Haut in which the Crown Prince had been more successful in breaking thru the French line near Moulin De Laffaux the Germans were able to hold some of the advance trenches, but the French by counter attacks forced the Germans to retire from most of them. The French artillery fire against the Germans caused heavy losses.

Feeling Your Pulse.

Here is one of Thoreaus' spring thoughts: "Measure your health by your sympathy with morning and spring. If there is no response in you to the awakening of nature, if the prospect of an early morning walk does not banish sleep, if the warble of the first bluebird does not thrill you, know that the morning and spring of your life is past. Thus may you feel your pulse."

The "Refreshing Draft."

The refreshing draft which Joel offered to Sisera "in a lordly dish" (Judges 5:25), was a preparation of milk well known in the East and called leben. The method of preparing it is to boil the milk over a slow fire, adding to it a small quantity of old leben, or some other acid, in order to make it coagulate.

Holland's Great Dikes.

One of the great dikes of Holland is 40 miles long, starting far up in the country, near the Yssel river, and continuing across the Hook of Holland to the sea. It was built in sections, and for seven centuries has held back the waters from the low-lying fields. It is 40 feet broad at the base, 35 feet broad at the top, and its height varies from 25 to 35 feet.

An Eye to Business.

William's mother told him he might bring home a playmate after school and that she would have two apples on the table for them to eat, whereupon William replied: "I suppose it will be all the same, mother, if I don't bring anyone home; I can eat them both."

mier's announcement was made in response to an interpellation presented by Deputy Georges Le Bail-Maignan, concerning "the attitude the government proposes to take in regard to the delegates to the international conference at Stockholm."

Peace From Victory Alone.

All the deputies, except the Socialists, stood up and cheered when Premier Ribot added:

"Peace can come from victory alone."

Continuing, the premier said:

"It is certain that in peace negotiations no party can take the place of the government. The peace of tomorrow cannot be a peace of any party, neither of the Socialist party nor of the Catholic party. As it concerns France, it should be a French peace. When the hour comes, the government will ask the advice of your committee, public himself. Gentlemen, this is an and it will tell everything. The government has a complete knowledge of its responsibility.

"It would be laughable if one sought to make the country and army believe that peace could come from such conferences. Victory alone can bring peace. What would they think of us in the United States if we allowed Americans to believe there was weariness among us after three years of war? Our energy must continue indomitable."

Premier Ribot than referred to what he termed an "audacious and impudent campaign" to spread reports that secret agreements had been signed with Russia, adding:

"We shall ask the Russian government to publish all the documents in question at an early date."

Denounces Secret Treaty Story.

"It is even said," the premier exclaimed, "that a secret convention with Russia, which is offensive and non-defensive, exists, and that it was executed by the president of the re- infamy."

The premier closed with the announcement that the government is ready to arrest certain elements charged with inciting riots and that the government also will see that foreign residents in France do not escape responsibility to the military laws of their own countries.

Marcel Cachin, the Socialist deputy, arose after the premier had concluded and said that the country could not be told the whole truth now. Deputy Cachin, who recently returned from Russia, said he had brought documents from Russia which he desired to lay before a secret session of the chamber. The secret session was voted by a large majority and the galleries were cleared.

WOULD'T MAKE OBSTACLE OF BELGIUM'S RESTORATION

STOCKHOLM, JUNE 2.—Immediate peace on the basis of no annexations and no indemnities and complete political restoration of occupied territories are advocated by the convention of Hungarian Socialists, which has come to Stockholm to attend the meeting of Socialists from various belligerent countries, who are now holding group conferences.

Regarding Belgium, the Hungarian group at today's conference urged that the cost of restoration should be borne by Germany, altho if persistence in this demand meant prolongation of the war, the cost should be shared by all the great belligerents.

Servia, too, in the opinion of the delegates, should be restored by the great belligerents. The question of Alsace-Lorraine, the Hungarians believe, might be settled between the Socialists of France and Germany.

On the other points the views of the delegation conform generally to those of the Austrian and German Socialists, as outlined at their group conferences.

HENDERSON AT PETROGRAD

Arthur Henderson, member o fthe British war council and minister without portfolio, has arrived here. He was met at the station by Minister of Foreign Affairs Tereschtenko and later was introduced to the other ministers. Countess Panin, well-known for her organization of popular philanthropies, has been offered the post of assistant minister in the new department of public welfare.

CABINET IS SPLIT

Great Russian Fortress Is Seized By Workmen's and Soldiers' Council

COPENHAGEN, JUNE 2—Within less than a month after its formation a split has occurred in the Russian coalition government. A dispatch from Petrograd today said that other resignations are feared, following the retirement of A. I. Konovaleff as minister o ftrade and commerce. M. Konovaleff resigned because of differences of opinion with the minister of labor, M. Skobeleff.

But equal in importance with this information in the news that the council of workmen's and Soldiers' delegates has taken over control of rKonstadt, the great fortress which defends Petrograd.

Advices from Petrograd convey the hint that the council will establish a "capital" at Kronstadt. A branch of the council will be maintained at Petrograd for the purpose of compunicating with the republican government.

COMPLETE REGISTRY ASSURED

WASHINGTON JUNE 2.—The U. S. will have a complete registration of its "war strength," as authorized under the selective conscription act next Tuesday despite all efforts to prevent it. Never before in the history of the nation have such sweeping arrangements been made to meet an emergency.

Every possible precaution has been taken. And, while it is considered certain that there will be some disturbances in certain sections, the reports reaching the attorney general today illustrated that they will hardly be more than could be expected at a general election.

A good part of the plans that have been made to "muzzle" the anti-draft advocates and to meet the amergencies are of a character that will not be disclosed.

One of the encouraging developments reaching Washington today was the announcement that patriotic citizens in all parts of the country are organizing vigilance committees to aid in the inforcement of the registratino law and to keep down all pro-German efforts to defeat it.

UNOFFICIAL LISTS PREPARED

Acting under general directions complied by the department of justice here, these citizens have tlready prepared unofficial lists of the men who should register. They will check up the registration lists to see that all such names are carried on their records. Those who have not shown up early to answer the questions will be sent for.

For the latter purpose it is declared at the office of the provost marshal general that there have been more automobiles promised than for any similar nation-wide event in the past

From every quarter the attorney general today was receiving offers of assistance. The direct appeal of the administration to all "good citizens" to assist in the work is resulting in unprecedented response.

Just when the total lists will be available so that the exact number of individuals that registered can be ascertained is not yet known.

It is violating no secret to say that the entire cabinet is backing up the president in the plans for the enforcement of the penalties against all persons who interfere with registration. An example must be made now, it is asserted, to throttle the conspirators.

ALICE BRADY —IN— 'The Dancer's Peril'

WITH ALEXIS KOSLOFF
of the Russian Imperial Ballet

The lure of the Russian dancers weaves a spell over all who see "The Dancer's Peris," the latest World Picture Brady-Made which is shown at Pastime Monday and Tuesday with Miss Alice Brady as the charming and fasnicating star. Miss Brady is seen in this production as the star of the Russian ballet, and the story calls for her appearance in a number of dance scenes. In these scenes she is supported by Alexis Kosloff, the famous Russian dancer who has been appearing at the Winter Garden in New York City during the winter. A big chorus participates in the picture. The offering as a whole is thoroly delightful, is consistent and convincing. It constitutes an absolutely satisfactory evening's entertainment.

Babe Is Taken From Nurse As Latter Sleeps

SPRINGFIELD, MO., JUNE 2.—Burns detectives today took charge of the search for 14-months-old Lloyd Keet, son of J. Holland Keet, wealthy banker and sole heir to the $3,000,000 estate of his grandmother, Mrs. Kate Keet.

One of the first steps was to send widespread thruout the country photographs of the baby whose disappearance parallels the kidnaping of little

THE KIDNAPPED CHILD.
Aged 14 months.
Brown hair.
Rather large hazel eyes.
Plump.
Even teeth.
Skin without a blemish.
Walks and talks remarkably well for his age.

"Billy" Whitla, son of J. P. Whitla, wealthy Sharon, Penna., lawyer, over a decade ago.

A gloom has settled down over the Keet mansion which can be dispelled only thru the return of the child. The hysterical grief of the mother has been replaced by a dry-eyed sorrow that is too deep for tears.

Each time the telephone jingles, each time a footstep echoes on the porch the mother hopes for word that her baby has been found.

Detectives are working on the theory that a woman engineered the kidnaping plot. No one else, tey say, could have entered the Keet nursery Wednesday night and taken the child without awakening the nurse who slept a few feet from the baby's crib.

Keet left his residence shortly after midnight in response to a note delivered by a messenger boy. He insisted on going alone and refused to state his destination. Just before daylight, he returned, pale and haggard and silent.

Sunday School Convention Is Held At Marion

Ohio's fifty-eighth state Sunday school convention will be held in Marion, June 27-29. Coshocton county is entitled to 20 delegates, and it is hoped that the full allotment may be provided by the co-operating schools of our county.

Special attention will be given and courtesies extended both by the convention and the city of Marion to all accredited delegates.

The County Secretary has just received from state headquarters credentials for official delegates which may be had upon application to Miss Nelle Sykes, of the Central Bank.

The officers of the association are solicitous that Coshocton county may have a large and enthusiastic representation this year.

C. H. Hood is president of the county association.

THEY WONDER WHO'S RIGHT

In connection with war time marriages an amusing story is told which concerns one young lady whose engagement was recently announced. At the time it was stated the wedding would occur in June.

A day or so later, and in the early part of the week just closed, the fortunate young man mailed in his registration card and claimed exemption Officials were amazed to find that his reason is: "a dependent wife." They are wondering who's right.

During the past two months 51 marriages licenses have been issued at the local office and of this number 15 were in the past seven days By far the majority of the bridegrooms to be were of military age It is said that some of the brides hurried their wedding to keep the beloved with them.

He Knew the Reason.

Karl started to kindergarten. His brother, Robert, had attended the same one last year. The instructor, calling Karl Robert so often, became provoked at herself and said: "Well, Karl, I don't know why I always call you Robert." "I guess I know," answered Karl, seriously. "I have on Robert's waist and his pants and his shoes."

No Reward for Laziness.

The only kind of people who are complete failures in life are the ones who never try to accomplish anything. For those who endeavor to achieve something worth while there is always a reward, even though they seem to fail, but for downright laziness there is no reward—and there shouldn't be.

THE MEANING OF INDUSTRIAL DEMOCRACY

In a recent issue of The Christian Work," E. G. Talbott says: "THE RE-SOCIALIZING OF PROPERTY IS AN ESSENTIAL PART OF THE CHRISTIANIZING OF THE SOCIAL ORDER."

If our ministers and that small, but financially powerful group of laymen who dominate practically every denomination today would analyze that statement sufficiently to see first, its basic truth and secondly, its tremendous significance to the church they would not be so quick to condemn fundamental social and economic reform. More than that the church would have solved the baffling problem of what has alienated, apparently beyond recall, the vast majority of men.

Mr. Talbott then quotes the eminent authority, Walter Rauschenbusch to this effect: "If we can give back to the community which creates them the unearned ingredients in rent and profit, we shall make commerce and industry honest, and at the same time increase the public wealth available for the protection of life, for the education of the young, and for the enrichment of culture and civilization. If we can re-socialize the public property, which is now in private possession, we shall democratize industry, secure far greater attention to the problems of public welfare, and win more genuine respect for what is truly private property."

Mr .Talbott then declares: "Wealth is being socialized in our day with a rapidity never dreamed of by the most sanguine Socialist five years ago. The war in Europe has made the nationalization of wealth a necessity. In a day the great transportation, dock and mine facilities were nationalized in England. Practically every form of wealth, including foodstuffs, has been nationalized in Germany. The factories and mills of all warring countries are now socially operated and controlled. Of course, this is State Socialism and not Democratic Socialism, but it is the goal toward which the Socialists have been working.

Poverty stands by the side of plutocracy in blocking the progress toward industrial democracy. BOTH MUST BE ABOLISHED, AND ONE CANNOT BE DESTROYED WITHOUT THE OTHER. They are mutually interdependent. They stand or fall together. Poverty exists because of inordinate wealth in the hands of a few.

Mr. Talbott then quotes from Ward's Poverty and Wealth and from the Report of the U. S. Bureau of Labor. Mr. Ward says: "The extent of poverty in the United States is appalling. Some years ago Robert Hunter made the computation that there were 10,000,000 people in this country living beneath the poverty line. The statement was vehemently denied, but later investigations by the United States Government proved that the estimate was, if anything, under the real number. Of this number it has been estimated that 4,000,000 are in a state of destitution and dependent upon charity.

In 1899, twenty-four per cent. of New York's population applied for charity. In 1903 almost thirty per cent of the population of Boston received relief. In 1914 one person in every twenty-eight in Chicago received help. One out of every ten persons who die in New York is buried in Potter's field at public expense."

"In an investigation covering 3,297,819 wage-earners, the average weekly earnings of all classes are $10.06; for men above sixteen years, $11.16; for women, $6.17; for children under sixteen, $3.46. Out of the total number of men included in the statistics, 1,215,798, or forty-six per cent., earned $10 or less a week."

"It is simply impossible for a family of five to maintain a decent standard of living on an income of $10 a week; hence wives and children are compelled to participate in the fierce struggle for existence."

The wealth of the United States has been absorbed by a few plutocrats. The Federal Income Tax Report tells a sordid story. During the fiscal year 1914 there were 135 people in the United States whose sworn annual income exceeded one-half million dollars. In 1915 the number had increased to 174. In 1914 there were forty-four men who declared under oath that their annual income was more than $1,000,000.

Commenting on these facts, Hon. Albert J. Wallace says: "We have wealth so great, accumulated in the last fifteen years mainly, that that wealth is a menace today, or, if not today, it only needs to increase in the next half score years as it has in the last and everybody will admit that it is a menace while in the hands of a few."

Chauncey Depew once said: "Fifty men control the finances of this nation and dictate its legislation."

The Pujo Congressional Investigating Committee reported in 1913: "Five men control the New York Clearing House, and the Clearing House controls the financial interests of the whole country."

In England, as far back as 1887, one-thirteenth of the population owned two-thirds of the nation's wealth. Seventy people own one-half of Scotland. Less than 800 people own one-half of Ireland.

The most startling indictment of modern American civilization ever presented to the public was the report of the Federal Commission on Industrial Relations, issued in 1915. This report was the result of one and one-half years of investigation of industrial questions in every important industrial center in the United States. Some of its findings are:

"Labor conditions in this country are such that immigrants come only from the more impoverished countries of Europe, such as Italy, Russia, Austro-Hungary and the Balkan nations; two per cent of the people own sixty-five per cent of the national wealth; sixty-five per cent own less than five per cent; there are forty-four families each with incomes equal to the wages of 100,000 workingmen; farm tenantry is increasing, and consequently landlordism is also; half of the wage-earning fathers get $15 per week; half of the women workers get less than $6 per week; in basic industries, workers are unemployed one-fifth of the time; three or more persons occupy every sleeping room in thirty-seven per cent of the workers' homes; thirty-seven per cent of wives and mothers of workingmen are forced to work to help out the family income; babies of the poor die three times as fast as those of the rich; nearly twenty per cent of the school children are underfed and undernourished; poverty prevents two-thirds of the school children from going thru the grammar school."

If wealth is to be socialized, both plutocracy and poverty must be abolished. The present condition cannot long continue without revolution.

Wm. F. Cook in his work entitled, "Will Wall Street Control Bring Revolution," says: "Private capital—principally centered in Wall Street at present—has an almost absolute control not only of the railroads, but also of the great industrial companies owning the natural resources of the country other than agricultural. This means the control of prices, and the control of men, and ultimately the control of the government itself, unless that control is wrenched from the grip of capital. The question is whether capital shall control the public and its government, or whether democracy shall control the government—whether men shall allow their employers (the corporations) to be controlled by capital in the hands of a few, or whether men shall be free and capital be subject to their control, directly or indirectly. That is the great question which faces modern nations. It is a world-wide and colossal problem, but nowhere so great as here."

The day when facts of this kind can be dismissed by calling them "Socialistic" is gone. Only the ignorant or the dishonest try to discredit facts they cannot answer by calling them names which will appeal to the prejudice of the unthinking. Truth is truth, no matter by whom advanced.

The Christian Work from which the above is taken is a conservative, but highly intelligent church paper. Its editors are writers who do not shrink from following the truth, no matter where it leads. The authorities quoted above are equally conservative—and intelligent. When will our people as a whole throw off their mental lethargy and face conditions AS THEY ARE? We hope before it is too late.

PATRIOTS
BY WALT MASON

The country calls for men to fight against a brutal, ruthless foe; the country's cause is just and right; the bugle's sounding—will you go? Forever honored is the man who springs to arms, without delay, impatient to be in the van, to lead his comrades in the fray. His breast with noble ardor burns; he grips his sword and thinks no more of all the trivial concerns of workshop, counting room or store. We hear his martial harness clank, we view him with a jealous stare, while we go paddling to the bank and salt down greasy doubloons there. "We'd gladly do our bit," we say, "but while amidst the battle smoke, our little business would decay, our bank accounts would soon go broke. War's perils we would gladly court, and meet the foe with dauntless tread, but we have grandsires to support, and uncles who are needing bread. Some day we'll press our iron heels upon the faces of the foe, but we must close up sundry deals, involving money, ere we go. Some day we'll battle on the land, or on the briny ocean foam, but there's no rush, you undertsand; we'll wait until the cows come home." Forever honored is the man who rises, at the country's need, above the private scheme and plan, the lure of profit, urge of greed.

Caustic Potash To Remove Horn

Horns on calves may be removed by an application of caustic potash. When the calf is two or three days old, clip the hair from the spot where the horn buttons protrude. Moisten the end of a wrapped stick of caustic potash and rub on the horn. Care should be taken to see that all of the horn is removed in order to prevent the growth of scurs. The calf should not be turned out into the rain immediately after the operation as the caustic preparation may wash down into the eyes and injure them. Caustic potash should be kept in an air-tight container, or it will absorb water and dissolve.—College of Agriculture.

Red Cross Week To End June 25

WASHINGTON, JUNE 2—In a proclamation to the American people, President Wilson today designated the week ending June 25 as Red Cross Week and urged that during the period generous gifts be made to assist the organization in properly caring for the armed forces of the nation and the administration of relief.

The proclamation points out that every man, woman and child in the United States may do their respective "bits" by giving, in a spirit of patriotic sacrifice, for the maintenance of Red Cross work, while a small proportion of the population is serving the nation on the fields of battle.

The text of the proclamation follows:

INASMUCH as our thots as a nation are now turned in united purpose towards the performance to the utmost of the services and duties which we have assumed in the cause of justice and liberty;

INASMUCH as but a small proportion of our people can have the opportunity to serve upon the actual field of battle, but all men, women and children alike may serve and serve effectively by making it possible to care properly for those who do serve under arms at home and abroad,

AND INASMUCH as the American Red Cross is the official recognized agency for voluntary effort in behalf of the armed forces of the nation and for the administration of relief.

Now, there, by virture of my authority as president of the United States and president of the American Red Cross, I, Woodrow Wilson, do hereby proclaim the week ending June 25, 1917, as Red Cross Week, during which the people of the United States will be called upon to give generously and in a spirit of patriotic sacrifice for the support and maintenance of this work of national need.

The Chocolate Plant.

The chocolate plant is a native of America. When first introduced into Europe chocolate was used only as a luxury, but it speedily advanced in popular esteem. It is now cultivated in countries far from its original home. The chocolate plant, as well as tea and coffee, has been cultivated from time immemorial. Chocolate as a beverage rapidly made its way in Europe, beginning in Spain, whither it was first brought.—Harper's Weekly

THE KAISER'S DREAM.

The following poem which is going the rounds of the newspapers, was written at the front in France by William McLachlan, who is serving with one of the Scotch Highlander regiment.—Editors.

There's a story now current, tho strange it may seem,
Of the great Kaiser Bill and his wonderful dream.
Being tired of the allies, he lay down in bed,
And amongst other things he dreamt he was dead.
And in a fine coffin was lying in state,
With a guard of brave Belgians, who lamented his fate.
He wasn't long dead 'till he found to his cost,
That his soul, like his soldiers, had surely been lost.
On leaving the earth to heaven he went straight,
And arriving up there gave a knock at the gate.
But St. Peter looked out, and in voice loud and clear
Said: "Begone, Kaiser Bill, we don't want you here."
"Well," said the Kaiser, "that's very uncivil.
I suppose after that I must go to the devil?"
So he turned on his heel and off he did go
At the top of his speed to the regions below.
And when he got there he was filled with dismay,
When waiting outside he heard Old Nick say.
To his imps: "Now, look here boys, I give you a warning.
"I'm expecting the Kaiser down here in the morning,
"But don't let him in, for to me it's quite clear
"He's a dangerous man, and we don't want him here.
"If once he gets in there'll be no end of quarrels,
"In fact I'm afraid he'll corrupt our good morals."
"O, Satan, my dear friend," the Kaiser then cried,
"Excuse me for listening while waiting outside.
"If you don't admit me where can I go?"
"Indeed," said the devil, "I really don't know."
"Oh, do let me in, I'm weary and cold,"
Said the Kaiser, quite anxious to enter Nick's fold.
"Let me sit in a corner, no matter how hot."
"No!" said the devil, "most certainly not."
"We don't admit people for riches or pelf;
"Here are sulphur and matches, make a hell for yourself."
Then he kicked Wilhelm out and vanished in smoke,
And just at that moment the Kaiser awoke.
He jumped out of bed in a shivering sweat,
And said: "Well, that dream I shall never forget.
"That I won't go to heaven I know very well,
"But it's really too bad to be kicked out of hell."

Circus Tent Blows Over Killing One; Scores Are Injured

UNIONTOWN, PA., JUNE 2.—With Mrs. Elizabeth Heilman, aged 32, dead, and three other women, Mrs. Earl Areford, Mrs. Hortense G. Frank and Miss Fern Clevinger, 19, in critical condition, scores of persons were nursing minor injuries today, following the collapse of the main tent of the Barnum & Bailey circus and the ensuing panic here Friday.

A gust of wind lifted the huge top of the tent from its supports and immediately the poles began to follow. The crowd began a wild stampede for the open. Several tiers of seats fell as the people fought their way under the canvass. Mrs. Heilman was found dead when the mad rush subsided.

During the excitement six elephants broke loose and ran wild over the grounds, but were no...

each ship showing a drama as the villain is foiled. So-called custard pie comedies are greeted with howls of delight.

Every ship has a mascot. Sometimes it is a goat; more often it is a dog, or several dogs. One big dreadnaugh has aboard a litter of bull puppies, sons and daughters of the ship's chief mascot. When the ship rolls the puppies slide across the decks and into the scuppers, to be fished out and set on their feet again by the bluejackets, their mother all the while watching the proceeding with a critical eye from around the corner of a hatchway.

Then there is a dog, half fox terrier and half something else, that answers to the name of "Pork Chops." He follows squads of sailors all over the ship, but he hasn't become used to the guns yet.

When a five-inch gun went off almost over his head, he lit out for the crew's galley, skidded around the door and disappeared for the rest of the day. Whereupon the crew began to ...

PEPSINCO

ON EVERYONE'S TONGUE. HUNDREDS IN THIS CITY NOT ONLY SAY PEPSINCO, BUT TAKE PEPSINCO AFTER EVERY MEAL. THAT'S THE REASON THEY HAVE A GOOD STOMACH.

Pepsinco—say it yourself that it may be easy to remember, easy to pronounce, easy to recall. Pepsinco demonstrates and identifies the strongest, most vital, most valuable remedy for indigestion and dyspepsia in the market. Every time you say Pepsinco to your druggist you are asking him for relief for your dyspepsia.

Thousands upon thousands of persons are taking Pepsinco and are having perfect health. Many of them suffered with indigestion, sick headache, sour stomach, dyspepsia, palpitation and other stomach disorders. They are well today. They took Pepsinco because it helped others, because it is highly recommended.

You try it out. Take a dose of this remarkable preparation, Pepsinco. You'll find we are right. You'll feel better after the first dose. Its prompt action will bring you around to normal health quickly and safely.

So many ordinary ills are closely allied to stomach faults that it is safe to apply the definition of indigestion to practically every internal complaint. If you have trouble with your food; if gas follows eating; if belching distresses you; if flatulency produces heart palpitation or heartburn, then Pepsinco is the preparation for you to take, for it offers the relief decidedly the quickest and best.

You who have suffered with indigestion and dyspepsia owe it to yourself to try Pepsinco. You cannot afford to delay longer. You cannot afford to take false or questionable remedies, the composition of which is uncertain and perhaps wrong. Buy Pepsinco of your druggist and get the scientific indigestion remedy. All druggists have Pepsinco, or we will send you a sample free of charge. The Neuro Pharmacal Company, Wapakoneta, Ohio.

Senreco

REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.

The double-service tooth paste, keeps teeth clean AND GUMS HEALTHY.

Keeping the gums healthy and the mouth sweet is very important to health; more teeth are lost through the loosening of the tissue that holds the teeth in place than from decay.

Dental science to-day demands that a tooth paste must keep the gums healthy as well as clean the teeth.

Senreco was formulated to meet this requirement. Hundreds of dentists are prescribing and using Senreco because they have found that it does measure up to that standard.

SENRECO IS A WONDERFUL CLEANSER.

In addition to its remedial properties Senreco is a wonderful cleanser; acts directly on the mucin film, the basis of tartar; leaves the mouth cool and clean-feeling. As some one has expressed it—Senreco gives one a new idea on mouth cleanliness.

Get a tube to-day at your druggists or toilet counter—enjoy the healthy, cleanly feeling its use gives your mouth and gums. Notice how brilliantly white Senreco makes your teeth. It performs this two-fold service for you and yet costs no more than the ordinary, old-fashioned tooth paste that simply cleans the teeth and leaves a pleasant taste—25 cents for a large 2 ounce tube.

Crews Of The Big Ships Are Working Night And Day To Defeat Germany

HERE is shown the Texas, one of the latest additions to the United States navy. The photograph was taken as she passed under the Brooklyn bridge. She and her sister ship, New York, are the most formidable craft in the navy. The Texas carries ten fourteen-inch guns.

WITH THE UNITED STATES ATLANTIC FLEET, JUNE 2.—The big ships of the most powerful fleet ever under the American flag, when visited by a correspondent of The Associated Press, thru arrangement with the Committee on Public Information, were working day and night to bring about the defeat of Germany on the sea. Ready for battle, they are spending the waiting period turning out sailor men.

The fleet, temporarily, is a great workshop of war. Already it is turning out one of its finished products—men who can fight. They are serving the guns on American armed merchant ships. Its other product—men who can run the great merchant fleet the United States will use to feed the Allies—will be ready as soon as the ships.

Five-inch guns, the kind principally used against submarines, are there by the hundreds. On the decks great turrets house long fourteen- and twelve-inch rifles—three or two to a turret. On high platforms guns used for defense against airplanes point to the sky. Brass is always shining, steel is always polished, paint is always new, decks are always white with scrubbing.

The men behind the guns have lost shipmates in the war they were guns' crews on merchantmen sunk by German submarines. And other shipmates now are on duty aboard the destroyers operating with the British and French fleets. The men with the Atlantic Fleet are working to prepare themselves to avenge the killing of their mates.

Here's what happened the other day. A crew was practicing with a five-inch gun. A bluejacket—about seventeen—he still had down on his chin—was pointing. He grasped handles on a broad brass wheel; his eye was steady at a rubber cup at the end of a long sight, thru which he saw the target. His duty was to keep the gun on the target so it might be fired any time.

Around this beardless youth were grouped other sons' [illegible] ready to fire when his crew had completed its period.

The breech snapped open, the lead was thrown home, the breech was hurled back in place and then a buzzer, operated from the fire control station, sounded; there was a flash, a roar, the hiss of a projectile speeding thru the air and the louder hiss of compressed air blowing smoke out of the gun. Miles away the projectile struck the target.

"Guess that's bad," said an old man-o'-war's-man looking on admiringly at the third shot, as the gun's crew got the range and the pillar of white water leaped into the air.

"How would that do for Fritzy? Suppose that had been a submarine and—"

The buzzer, the roar of the gun and the hiss of air interrupted him.

"Another hit! Gee whiskers that's shooting."

On the after deck latest arrivals aboard the ship were set to work that day, and every other day, in fact, upon the loading machines. They consist principally of a breach and block and a slide that carries away dummy projectiles and powder bags.

Officers with stop watches in their hands set one crew after another to work; the idea being to develop extreme loading speed by competition. The newest members of the ships' companies work for days at these loading machines. The next step in their training carries them to the guns. But they are not yet ready to fire the regular charges. One pounders, that go off with a sharp crack, are lashed on top of the big guns and the crews go thru all the motions of firing, but instead of a big shell, a little one weighing a pound speeds for the target when the buzzer sounds or when the turret captains in charge of the officer rifles yell "Fire!"

After a period of firing with the subcaliber arrangement the crews get down to real battle practice. There are few busier places than a turret in action. Concave steel walls are all around, and a steel roof is just above the heads of the gunners. The pointers sit far forward, underneath the barrels of the guns. Little seats like those on a motor cycle are there for them and on every side are instruments. As the turret begins to fire, a lift, bearing the large projectile, hangs up from below, great bags of powder slide from the magazines into a long brass trough. Husky bluejackets toss the powder into another brass trough that is slipped into position at the gaping breech. The projectile, almost as large as a man, meanwhile has been rolled into the trough, a long automatic rammer has pushed from the rear and shoved it into the barrel. The powder bags are driven home, a man as the breech swings a lever, a ton of steel swings up with a hiss of compressed air. The breech block turns and locks, a buzzer sounds, the charge is fired and with a rush of air the guns recoil about a yard and then jump back into position. There is a loud "swish——swish" as the guns come backand then go forward. Inside the turret not much more than that is heard.

Outside, it is much different. There is a flash, a roar, a ring of smoke and the loud whistle of the projectile rushing thru the air. So great is the concussion that every man outside has cotton or some other substance in his ears to save his ear drums from being broken.

Fifteen seconds from "Commence firing" to "Fire" is considered pretty good time for the big guns in the navy. They have new guns' crews in training now who never saw salt water until three weeks ago who are doing the thing easily in sixteen seconds.

Some nights the ships of the fleet cruise in waters nearby for night battle practice. Other nights they are anchored in the base waters, where crews are drilled at torpedo defense. The guns are manned and dummy torpedoes and submarines are picked up by the searchlights and theoretically destroyed.

The fleet has gained efficiency in torpedo defense. They tell a story in the ward rooms of an American submarine which decided to change its anchorage without giving notice. The fleet is dark after a certain hour at night. Not a light shows, but the watch is intensely alert.

One of the deck officers saw the submarine outline itself and a gun quickly was trained. The submarine was hailed, but the men on it failed to hear. The fact that the submarine was running behind the patrols was the only thing that saved it. A five-inch gun probably would have blown it to pieces if the maneuver had taken place on the other side of the net. Now submarines don't move around like that at night. It was dangerous business.

Before the fleet is darkened, the ships in every direction present an inspiring spectacle. Lights, as of a city, show everywhere. Blinker signals flash on and off—signalling in the dots and dashes of the Morse code. Long fingers of white from searchlights shoot up into the sky—on and off—on and off—signalling also with dots and dashes.

Other searchlight beams pick up boats that approach them, some illuminate a landing wharf. Away in the distance searchlights of the patrol boats flash on every now and then; sweep the waters to discover that what might have been a periscope is only a white cap. Then they flicker out again. From the shore, at night, boats passing anywhere in the neighborhood suddenly find themselves in the glare of searchlights.

While the guns' crews are being trained on some of the ships, aboard others are being trained men to run the hundred or more German vessels the United States will operate as soon as repairs are made to their engines, and the fleet of merchantmen being built to carry food and supplies to the Allies. The fleet is training engineers, electricians—men to fill every position. The Atlantic Fleet is confident that it will be able to supply a full complement for every ship, for the navy is getting men now faster than ever before, and if the officers are proud of their ships, the guns on the decks and the power of the engines in their hulls, they are doubly proud of the spirit of the new men who are coming into the navy. A ranking officer said:

"These new men have come into the navy to fight and they want to get into the thick of it. We are turning out guns' crews every day and every day we get orders for more. In three months from now hundreds of guns' crews will have left the fleet for places where they may sink German submarines or cheerfully give up their lives trying. And these boys—for most of them are no more than that—can shoot."

A large majority of the new men in the fleet their officers said, have come from farms, especially in the Middle West. On every ship may be found youths who until the war began were following plows.

"In this fleet," said one of the officers, "more than ninety per cent of the men are native-born Americans. There are few foreign-born men here."

On any ship may be heard the drawl of a South Carolinian or a Georgian, the New Yorkese of the East Side; the twang that is New England's, the rising intonation of western Pennsylvania and the tone that only comes from west of Chicago. So fast is the enlisted personnel of the navy growing that there is no room for the new men at the training stations ashore. A man enlists one day in Kentucky and three days later finds himself at a loading machine on the deck of a dreadnaught.

Many ships have aboard them the naval militia from the various states. Some of the militia are pronounced good sailors.

On nearly every ship are men who used to be in the navy and who have gone back to their old, and usually low, ranks because their country needs them. They are regular officers.

On one of the ships is a Wall Street broker. He graduated from Annapolis many years ago, resigned and later came back into the service during the Spanish-American war. He commanded the Hist in several fights in Cuban waters and knows how it feels to be under fire.

"The Navy Needs You was the sign that got me back this time," said he. "When I read that sign I knew it meant me and I fixed it right off so I could come back. I left the navy at the close of the Spanish-American war and have been in the brokerage business in New York ever since."

On another ship is a little man with gray hair—a grandfather—who wears the uniform of an ensign.

"I resigned from the navy many years ago," he said. "I have grandchildren now. When we went to war with Germany I knew the navy needed trained men and I offered myself. They accepted me and here I am with the junior officers. I suppose I am the only grandfather ensign in the navy."

The "grandfather ensign" is just as anxious to fight as the newest recruit at the loading machines, and he is capable, too.

They've got a slight attack of spy scare in the navy. Officers said that it was quite possible there were Germans on the ships. The spy who is caught is very likely to find himself looking into the business ends of the rifles of a firing squad. Every now and then suspicions of the officers and men are aroused and a quiet investigation is conducted. Bluejackets are suspicious of anything unusual. One new recruit had suspicion against himself because he carried aboard ship with him a geometry book.

A magazine writer enlisted to gain hand information about the life of an enlisted man. He had an agreement with the Navy Department thru which he was to get out of the navy in a couple of weeks and enlisted as a yeoman. His second day on the ship he started to look around and finally appeared in the boiler room. The firemen chased him out and one of the coal passers informed the boat swain, adding, "A yeoman has no business in the boiler room. If he comes down there again—the sneaking spy—I'll brain him with a shovel. That ought to save a firing squad a lot of trouble."

The President's yacht Mayflower has just visited the fleet. Aboard it were Secretary Daniels and Secretary Baker. The Presidential yacht, glistening white in sharp contrast to the dirty business-looking gray of the fighting ships, slipped into the best waters one Sunday morning. Except for the strains of the National Anthem, first from one and then from another, as the Mayflower, the two Secretaries' flags flying from her masts, passed down mile after mile of war vessels, there was quiet. Puffing ships' launches and boats going to and from shore lay to as the glistening bow of the yacht cut thru the water. Two navy airplanes circled high in the air.

The two Secretaries inspected some of the ships and men and then boarded the Admiral's gig, which carried them to a new recreation field fixed up for the many thousand men of the fleet by the Navy League. Baseball diamonds cover acres of ground and they are well patronized; many games were in progress when the Secretaries arrived.

Secretary Baker got so interested in a game that he stepped over the foul line. A husky sailor not recognizing the visitor, addressed him by yelling "Hey!" and then followed it up with a demand that he get back in a hurry, several choice adjectives being added for the sake of force. The Secretary moved, and right smartly, too.

Several bluejackets stepped up and were recognized as boys from Cleveland, where Secretary Baker formerly was mayor. All shook hands and the Secretary of War chatted with them for some time.

There are other recreations besides those found ashore at the base of the fleet. Every day mail comes and goes. There are band concerts each evening, and every ship has a moving picture machine. Screens are set up on the decks and for an hour and a half comedies, dramas and dark mysteries are shown. The men crave amusement after a hard day's work and they get it. Pictures of children are especially popular and loud "Ha-Ha's" resound from
